Type of event: Workshop

Event name: Dissertation data analysis planning for “Research week celebration”

Date: 29.11.2024

Time: 1:30pm to 3:30pm

Venue: Conference hall, IVth floor, SMVMCH

Dissertation writing is an essential component of academic research that requires students to conduct in-depth research on a specific topic and present their findings in a well-structured and organized document. It is a final project at the end of their academic program to demonstrate their knowledge, critical thinking skills and expertise in particular field of study.

We, the department of Obstetrics and Gynaecology, conducted a workshop on “Dissertation data analysis planning” on 29.11.2024 from 1:30PM to 3:30PM in hospital block fourth floor conference hall at SMVMCH in view of Research week celebration. It was attended by our department first year and second year postgraduate students.

Workshop continued with an active discussion with our department Professors and faculties.

All postgraduate students presented their dissertation proposal, cases collected based on their proforma, statistical analysis plan.

Fruitful discussion was made with the professors about the required observation and results based on the particular study and methods of consolidation of results with the help of master chart. Our department faculties also actively participated.

This workshop helped the postgraduate students to clear their doubts regarding analysis plan and in obtaining basic idea in bringing the observation results.
