IIC Self Driven Activity

Title: Medicus Ludus (Pre-Clinical Subjects Quiz)

Date: 26.03.2025 to 28.3.2025

Organizing Secretary: Dr.P.Sanjay, Dean Research,
IIC – Convener

IIC -Student Coordinator: Deepak V

Venue: Lecture Hall 4

Objectives:

- To reinforce foundational knowledge in pre-clinical subjects (1st and 2nd year).
- To encourage critical thinking and problem-solving among medical students.
- To enhance teamwork and healthy academic competition.
- To foster active learning through visual and case-based clinical scenarios.
- To promote participation in co-curricular activities that complement the academic curriculum.

Participants Details:

Prelims of Medicus Ludus saw enthusiastic participation from 40 teams comprising students from all phases of MBBS. After the prelims, the top 5 teams qualified for the finals.

Programme Overview:

Medicus Ludus was a quiz competition conducted to test and celebrate students' knowledge of pre-clinical subjects, covering both first and second-year topics. The prelims were held on March 26, and the finals took place on March 28. The quiz featured rounds that included visual-based questions, clinical case scenarios, and rapid-fire challenges, making it dynamic, interactive, and educational. The format kept not only the participants but also the audience actively engaged, encouraging peer learning and sparking curiosity. The initiative aimed to integrate fun with learning, giving students an opportunity to challenge themselves academically outside the classroom. The winners and runners-up were felicitated by the management.

Outcomes:

- Reinforced academic knowledge in pre-clinical subjects through active recall.
- Encouraged teamwork and collaboration among medical students.
- Created an engaging academic atmosphere that promoted competitive learning.
- Stimulated interest in quiz-based learning as a method of revision and application.

Way Forward:

Moving forward, the Institute Innovation Council will continue to conduct various IIC Self Driven activities aimed to promote student knowledge, academic excellence, teamwork and peer learning. IIC will conduct regular contests and sessions to analyze the academic activities of the students and take it step further to convert as ideas and innovations.
